"This is a delightfully presented book which will particularly appeal to fans of the Ideas Birds set who want to build more in the same vein. The instructions are set out clearly and concisely..." - Huw Millington of Brickset.com

A gardener and tree surgeon by profession and a passionate nature and bird lover, Thomas Poulsom rediscovered his love of building with Lego as an adult. He was inspired to create his first realistic Lego bird sculpture, a robin, when a real robin perched nearby while he worked in his garden. Poulsom has since expanded the scope of his Lego project to more than 30 birds from every continent; three--his robin, hummingbird, and bluejay--were recently accepted by Lego for production as a set. Poulsom's Lego bird designs have been featured in many online venues for Lego, design, gardening, nature, and birding enthusiasts. In 2013 he was a speaker at the PINC (People Ideas Nature Creativity) Conference in Zeist, Holland.

I love the book and have already made the cardinal. :)One thing to look out for...some of the darker colored instructions take a tad longer to read since it is harder to see some of the placements. Anyone experienced will be fine, but younger kids may struggle.
