The DeLorme Gazetteers are a MUST HAVE for navigating and exploring, and a helpful backup for when your GPS/phone nav doesn't work well. I keep one in each car; this one replaces a well-loved, tattered, older addition.

I had been using my old outdated copy for a couple decades when I decided to get a new one. It looked great, but was very dissapointed when I found that many of the things, like smaller campgrounds, were missing from the new version - even ones that had been on the old version.

Far better than just a plain Atlas. A must for anyone traveling in the U.S. We use a Garmin 7" GPS , but this Atlas & Gazetteer familiarizes a driver with roads & highways on a much larger scale and much more detailed..

It is not the map that was bad, it was the delivery. It had been rainging here and the whole map was soaked from sitting out in the rain for hours. I had to lay t out to dry, but really who does that to their own stuff. I have a car port that is covered...Humm maybe put it under that.Very disappointing.

road designations hard to define. Spend the extra money and get the Rand McNalley

I just updated and am happy with this new atlas. My older version has been used as a log for past road trips and was getting filled up!

The DeLorme line of topo maps is a travel must for my family. I have found more amazing little out-of-the-way places with these maps than I ever could have with a "take the next left" app. There simply is no alternative to opening the map and plotting your course for the day!

I got this for some Amish and as they travel by horse and buggy, they love it
