It's superb and a great value. Laura Shoe is a natural as a teacher with a gift for anticipating all likely questions and the ability to deliver explanations in a pleasant-to-listen-to, precise, easy-to-follow manner. The lessons are well thought out, well organized and flawlessly executed. They're the next best thing to having a great expert at your side. It's so easy to learn at your own pace, simply pause a lesson, practice what you just learned and, if necessary, repeat until you've got it down pat. It's very easy to locate any particular topic anytime you need to refresh your memory. It's perfect for both beginners and intermediate level Lightroom users and will impress advanced users as well. --PhotoSource International

Laura Shoe is an internationally-known blogger, instructor and award-winning fine art photographer based in Oregon. She is an Adobe Community Professional and an Adobe Certified Expert in Photoshop Lightroom, and teaches Lightroom, Photoshop and other digital imaging topics. She has taught for creativeLIVE, Rocky Mountain School of Photography, and many other organizations. She has also been hired by Adobe to make video tutorials for their website.

Dear Ms. Shoe.I have to admit, Laura, when I first opened up Lightroom 6 I found it just about as overwhelming as Marine Corps. boot camp. That program (application to anyone under 40) has more menus than a nationwide fast food chain, and more buttons and sliders than the Space Shuttle. I didn't think I'd ever learn to use it. That is, until I purchased your Lightroom 6 Fundamentals and Beyond course. You've got this old retired guy who just started photography as a hobby, zipping around Lightroom like Richard Petty on race day. I have to say that your skill with this programs is remarkable. Your short videos maintain the attention span of this old guy who sometimes has trouble remembering why he walked into the kitchen. Not a small accomplishment. You know more tricks than a herd of circus ponies and it's my intent to learn every one of them. I may have to play the videos two or three times for it to sink into my failing memory, but as long as the DVD drive don't break I'll get there. Now, if I could just remember where I put the camera.

Kind of clunky to install, but useful information. So it gets a 4

Where to begin. I have purchased three of Laura Shoe's video classes. I have also purchased many classes from other photographers. LAURA'S are on the top of the list for content, presentation and overall quality. Truly her's are by a wide margin better than virtually all other classes I have been exposed to--and, I confess, I buy way too many of these photography classes, so I have more exposure to them than I ought to. In addition to Laura's being among the VERY BEST, there are a few additional side benefits. She sends emails out when she has something important to tell us and not many other time. Above all, I do not get daily emails (as I do from others selling their classes) telling me what a great offer they have for me that day. Then, if I like that offer, here are all the items I can add to it. If Laura ever does a class in central Texas, I would like to meet her and take that class.

I teach photography and camera work myself, and I find Laura Shoe's Lightroom series among the best I have seen on the internet. AND believe me I have seen a lot of pundits pounding their pulpits of photographic promulgation (Kelby, Phlearn, Trey, Mr. Hairball, the precious dudes who do music scores with their podcasts; ad-infinitum). Laure is calm and concise and very professional with a kind edge. You can tell she loves Lightroom and her customers. I wholeheartedly endorse her work and products. ~Tom Upton, PhotoTrainer, Palo Alto

At last, a concise and step-by-step approach to LightRoom. Not only what each module is, or what a button/slider does, but the why's and how's to make a better photograph. Easy to review and go back. With her secret blog site for buyers, you get a great group of experts to novices with Laura watching over you. This was my third self-taught effort and I don't need another, especially since she keeps us up-to-date whenever Adobe has an update at no cost!

I have been using Laura's "Fundamentals & Beyond video series" for over a year now. It has helped me become proficient in my post processing and output printing using the Adobe Lightroom program. I can always refer back to her videos as a reference when I need a little help or forgot how to do a certain task. She always keeps me informed on the latest updates and provides videos and tutorials covering the recent changes, which include Lightroom CC/6 and 5. If you are really serious about learning all the features in Lightroom, I highly recommend you purchase her Fundaments & Beyond video series.

There is a lot of Lightroom training out there but this is by far the best I've come across. I used it when I transferred away from Aperture and decided Photos just wasn't up to it. I had the original Lightroom 5 videos and then purchased the Lightroom 6/CC series when it became available. Laura isn't just a good trainer. She keeps everyone updated when a new LR version comes out and has an active Facebook group. I recommend this to anyone who wants to learn Lightroom at their own pace. I own the downloads rather than the videos but that's because I'm in the UK and it's easier than waiting for DVD's.

I bought these two videos separately. I didn't want to commit to the bundle until I went through the first product. All I can say is, buy the bundle! Laura is a diligent, thoughtful teacher who makes very technical matters understandable. I thought this course might be too simplified, but she has a knack of catering to all levels of knowledge. It takes a while to go through all the mp4 tutorials but you will be glad you did as they are in very digestible portions. This is much better, in my opinion, than any of the Lightroom books as seeing is believing.
